GREAT WORK

Being Done By Peniel Sunday-School.

Organized Twenty-Nine Years Ago—Efforts of the "Faithful" Rewarded.

Here is a story of a Sunday-school that has been a source of pleasure, inspiration and much valuable education to the writer, who gathers from his diary the following history: Twenty-nine years ago in the little Ewing Grove schoolhouse, opposite the entrance to the old Breckenridge homestead on the Taylorsville Road leading from Louisville to Jeffersontown, one blessed Sabbath afternoon a number of Christian workers and children (God bless them—for without them what would we do?) came together for the purpose of establishing a Sunday-school, where from Sabbath to Sabbath they might come for the purpose of gaining a better knowledge of God's inspired word.

They did not count in vain. The interest manifested from the very beginning was marked, and the undertaking was always uppermost in the minds of the faithful workers. Here we gathered inspiration, found by seeking the deep hidden truths in the law of God that makes men free. Gathering from the precious Book the sweet and lasting assurance that our Father never leaves or forsakes his children, sometimes after the opening of the school a number of those who attended were converted. This was the cause of a great change taking place in their lives, and since that a number of dear scholars, having found the peace that passeth understanding, have gone to their reward, witnessing to their last moments to the power of Jesus and of the grace given them through His spirit to see beyond the grave the shining of many mansions not made with hands. They died triumphantly.

A few years after the first day of opening it was found that the little schoolhouse was not sufficiently large to seat the attendants comfortably, and there was a unanimous vote in favor of building a small church for the purpose of continuing this most important work. It was not long before there was an offer made by Mrs. Fanny Speed (of blessed memory) to contribute $500 toward building the church for this purpose. This contribution was soon increased to $2,700 by friends and neighbors and soon after it resulted in the erection of the present building.

The entire building when finished and furnished cost about $3,000, which was secured before the dedication. This was an evidence of the kindly interest taken in the project by the many friends and neighbors who contributed to the fund.

Much has been accomplished by this work; thousands of religious papers have been supplied from Sabbath to Sabbath; in the past year, for example, several hundred volumes, have been accumulated; the young people of the surrounding country have met regularly for a period of twenty-nine years, with no other object in view than the study of God's precious word and to sing the sweet songs of Zion regularly each Sabbath, as there has never been a single Sunday during this period that the school was not open, making a total of over 1,500 sessions. His promises recalled is cause for sincere thanksgiving, for "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there will I be in their midst."

It has been a source of joy to those interested inasmuch as they have learned to know their neighbors better and to realize that by the study of God's word our minds are enriched in a way that no other means can reach, making us understand that He is a God of love, tenderly caring for His children.

The average attendance during the life of the school has been approximately fifty-five per Sabbath, or an entire attendance for 1,500 Sabbaths, $4,000. The smallest attendance any one day was 17; the largest over 200. The sole object of the work is to promote the best interests of the soul, and to thereby glorify and honor God in the upbuilding of His Kingdom here upon earth.

The regular Sunday services were interspersed with special services at Easter time, anniversaries, children's days, annual picnic, harvest home Sunday, Christmas entertainments, and last, but not least, "Mothers Day" which we celebrated this year for the first time. All seemed to enjoy it very much, indeed, and especially the mothers, who above all others, we delight in pleasing as well as honoring. We know that while building for God in this part of his vineyard our Father approves the work, as His blessed word assures us of His approval.

The efforts put forth have brought many happy experiences into the lives of our dear children and we believe that some day in God's own good time we shall have the privilege of meeting them again after the meetings cease at "Peniel" in our Father's home above, where our Redeemer awaits our coming. Rejoicing in this hope we look forward to the future with gladness of heart, knowing that under His divine guidance with the stamp of His approval all will end well.

This information is respectfully submitted at the request of the enterprising and worthy editor of The Jeffersonian by your humble servant, EDW. F. WEISTEIN.

The time of our Sunday-school hours is 3 p. m. We also have a prayer meeting and Bible study hour each Thursday night.

Nicholson-Parfitt.

The Courier-Journal had the following to say concerning the marriage of one of Jefferson county's most popular young ladies:

Fisherville, Ky., June 15.—On Wednesday afternoon, June 12, at Fisherville, the home of Mrs. Ellen Blaes Nicholson, her daughter, Miss Fern Caruth Nicholson, and Mr. Dow Well Parfitt, of Jacksonville, Fla., were married amid friends, relatives and flowers. The bride came down the carpeted entrance stairs as the arm of the groom, while the harpist played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Winsor and the flower girl, Miss Margaret Norton Parfitt, sister of the groom. The wedding party proceeded into the spacious parlor, in the corner of which was a canopy of daisies and ferns, surmounted on a bell of white lilies, under which the couple stood while the Rev. H. N. Reubelt performed the impressive ceremony. The bride was beautiful in her white crepe de chine train, trimmed in seed pearls. She wore a tulle veil to the hem of her dress and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. The color scheme—green, white and yellow—was carried out to perfection. The couple were the recipients of many handsome presents, bespeaking the hearty good wishes and love of numerous friends. Mr. and Mrs. Parfitt will make their home in Jacksonville.

VALLEY STATION.

June 17.—Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Enrich and son, Paul, of Louisville, were guests of Mrs. Ernest Dodge Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Glaze and son, Willie, of Indiana, were guests of Mrs. Sam Hollis Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Napier and children, Karl and Rodney, of Louisville, spent the week-end with Mrs. Napier's father, Mr. Fred Baker.

Mr. Henry Miller returned Sunday night to Pensacola, Florida, after spending several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller. Masters John and Robert, Hendrickson, of Indianapolis, are spending the week with their uncle, Rev. Harry Short.

Mrs. Ernest Dodge and Miss Hattie Dodge accompanied a crowd of children to an outing at Fontaine Ferry Tuesday, given by the Nurses Association.

Mr. Will Nell spent Sunday with friends at Stanton.

Mrs. Sam Groves entertained the Ladies Aid of Bethany church Thursday at her home with an all-day meeting celebrating Mrs. I. P. Moreman and Miss Lucila Groom's birth-anniversaries and Mrs. Harry Short's wedding anniversary.

The Ladies Aid of Beechland Baptist church will have an ice cream supper at Kennedy's woods Saturday, June 29. Hours 6 to 11.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Lonnon, Miss Edith Lonnon and Elmer Lonnon, of Louisville, spent Sunday with Mr. John Miller and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Short, of Indianapolis, spent several days with Rev. and Mrs. Harry Short.

Miss Sherman Dodge will entertain the Aid of the Christian church at her home Wednesday, June 26.

Have Good Time at Olympian Springs.

Talk Shop, Dance, Eat Fried Chicken, Drink Mineral Water—K. P. A. Meeting.

The Kentucky Press Association held its forty-third mid-summer meeting at Olympian Springs, in Boone county, Kentucky, last week. On Monday evening, June 10, the editors with their wives and sweethearts, about eighty in number, boarded the two reserved cars of the C. & O. Railroad company in Louisville and started on a splendid trip through the Blue Grass section of Kentucky. At Shelbyville, Lexington, Winchester and Mt. Sterling the happy crowd was joined by other members of the association and when they arrived at Olympian Springs over one hundred registered at the hotel. About fifty came later in the week, and five days of pleasure, mixed with business of the association, were spent.

Our own beloved Col. E. Polk Johnson, one of the two honorary life members of the association, in behalf of the manager of Olympian Springs, extended the welcome to the editors. He spoke of the beauties and pleasures of Olympian Springs and referred to the place as the "Garden of Eden." From the way all in attendance enjoyed themselves many were led to believe he was not far wrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Neal, former proprietors of the Blue Rock Springs, near Jeffersontown, have charge of Olympian Springs and made everybody have a good time. The large and beautiful hotel building, together with the handsome little frame and log cottages scattered about the lovely grounds, furnished splendid accommodations for all. Being early in the year it did not have any effect on the supply of fried chicken and other good things to eat. Manager O'Neal certainly won the hearts of the members of the Kentucky Press Association, and the executive committee will listen to those that attended this year's meeting the annual session of 1913 will be held at Olympian.

One of the prettiest and best construction and dance halls in the South was opened to the editors for their business sessions in the mornings and in the afternoons and evenings the dancers took charge. Excellent music was furnished and the cotillion, led by Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Pickels, of Richmond; the German, the Virginia Reel and "round" dances were grand successes. Miss Lela Scoggin, a Jefferson county girl, had charge of all the social features and the sweet and lovely manner in which she entertained the large crowd endeared her to everyone.

Space forbids telling of all the many things said and done at dear old Olympian Springs to make the 1912 summer meeting one of the best ever held by the Kentucky Press Association. However, we will say that the members owe a debt of lasting gratitude to Judge Matt Walton, president of the company, who extended the invitation, Col. E. Polk Johnson for making that "famous" speech to the executive committee; Gen. W. B. Haldeman for casting the deciding vote in favor of Olympian; the C. & O. and L. & N. railroad companies for many courtesies and accommodations and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. O'Neal, manager of the springs, and Miss Scoggin, who made the stay so enjoyable.

Officers Elected.

The annual election of officers, reported as follows: Ed. D. Shinnick, Shelbyville Record, president. John S. Lawrence, Cadiz Record, vice-president.

J. C. Alcock, The Jeffersonian, Jeffersontown, secretary-treasurer. J. R. Lemon, Mayfield Messenger, chairman of Executive Committee.

J. B. Starn, John R. Gages, Robert J. McBryde and John J. Barry were appointed by the president as the other four members of the Executive Committee.

The meeting adjourned Friday at noon and the editors returned home Friday afternoon.

Business Sessions.

The business sessions were well attended.

tended. Gen. W. B. Haldeman, of the Louisville Times president, was in the chair and did much to make the meeting a success. The principal addresses of the week were those of Mr. John B. McFerran, of Louisville, who spoke on "Kentucky Schools" and Mr. Desha Breckenridge, editor of the Lexington Herald, who spoke on "Kentucky's Need." Many addresses were made and papers read on topics pertaining to the newspaper business.

PRETTY WEDDING

Miss Virginia Linn Snively And Mr. Miller G. Sparks Married In Louisville.

A wedding, beautiful in its simplicity, was solemnized at nine o'clock last evening at the Broadway Methodist church in Louisville, when Miss Virginia Linn Snively and Mr. Miller G. Sparks were united in wedlock. The pastor of the church, Rev. P. W. Wells, officiated.

Miss Mary Alice Cominger gave a musical program before the wedding. As the bridal party entered she played "Lohengrin's March" and during the ceremony "Branmerrill" and "My Heart at Thy Voice," from Sampson and Delilah. Mendelssohn's march was rendered as the party left the church. The ushers were Dr. Emory Dravo and Messrs. Guy Nicholson, Gilmore Ouerbacher and Shirley Rivers. Miss Fannie Belle Snively was maid of honor and Mr. George Mullins was flower girl. Little Katherine Godfrey was flower girl and Master Samuel Smith the ring bearer.

The bride was given in hand—embroidered French batiste, and wore a long tulle veil arranged with a Juliet cap, caught at the sides with sprays of lilies of the valley. She entered on the arm of her father, Prof. R. H. Snively, and was met at the chancel by the groom and his best man. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Fannie Belle Snively wore white embroidered voile over yellow satin and carried an arm bouquet of Ward roses. The flower girl wore a white French dress with yellow ribbon and carried a French basket of white sweet peas tied with yellow tulle.

A reception for the bridal party and the immediate relatives of the contracting parties was given at the home of the bride near Jeffersontown. The house was tastefully decorated with daisies, and the color scheme, yellow and white, was carried out in ices and cakes. The candies were housed in yellow and white shades, and the favors were monogrammed boxes of the wedding cake. Miss Charlotte Howell presided at the punch bowl. Mr. and Mrs. Sparks were the recipients of numbers of handsome and useful presents and after a short receiving journey they will go to housekeeping in Louisville.

Ice Cream Supper.

The ladies of the Springdale Presbyterian church will give an ice cream supper in the church yard Wednesday evening, June 26, from 7 till 10 p. m.

BIBLE

Should Be In Public Schools.

Horace W. Moreman Writes of The Ice Bergs That Wreck Human Lives.

One of the icebergs we contend against is ignorance and Mr. John B. McFerran and his coadjutors need the co-operation of every well-wisher of the race in their efforts to give us more and better schools for the boys and girls of the state. With the boys and girls instructed in how to work in field and house and the boys and girls corn and tomato clubs and with the Bible in the common schools, the divorce bill would be lessened and the American people will again be a home-loving, home-making and home-owning people, and not as now, mostly renters. The Bible must be in the public schools. Neglect of light cost Captain Smith his ship, his life and the lives of his passengers.

The Bible is a lamp to our feet and a light to our pathway, and Christ is the light of the world. The founders of the U. S. of China found at the conclusion of the war against the Empire a great many prisoners on their hands. What shall we do with them?

The old plan in China was to cut off the heads of any prisoners of the opposing forces. But when it came before the provisional government what to do with the prisoners and the motion was made to behead them, Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the real founder of the Republic, rose and said, "As a Christian I cannot consent to that," and one by one the delegates arose and repeated Dr. Sen's speech until a large majority of the delegates were shown to be on the side of mercy and were Christians. And today those prisoners are free and citizens of the Republic of China. Is Christ only a man who died something like 1,800 years ago? Yes, rather he did not arise again, and is His spirit not today changing the hearts and lives of men all over the earth? Yes, His lives and is saying to everyone as he did to Nicodemus of old, whether we are Virginians, Kentuckians, Italians, Turks, Chinese, Hottentots, or Canibals, "Ye must be born again."

Nor can we, as the captain of the steamer Californian did, though he saw the signals of distress made by the Titanic's captain, go on our way but let the sinking, the dying, the ignorant and the sinful; but one must do as the Captain of the Carpathia did, use every effort at the risk of our ship and our lives and hurry to the rescue. Follow our captain who gave his life for us. To do this as individuals and as nations we must be born again. Regeneration will be followed by reformation. Give the children a chance to at least hear a chapter from the Bible by putting this sentence in the school law: "The chapter from the English Bible shall be read each day at the opening of the session of the common school by the teacher."

There could be only one thing meaner than the conduct of the Captain of the Californian, that would have been instead of passing on by the Titanic as he did, for him to have gotten close to the Titanic and as each boat was lowered to have fired into it and sunk it and its occupants and to have sunk each struggling person in the icy water. Ollie James says take the tax or tariff off sugar and the people of the United States of America will be able to build 115,000 $1,000 houses each year, that the tax amounts to $115,000,000. The liquor bill of the United States of America would give (2,000,000) two million people each year a home costing $1,000 each. It seems our ship is already badly battered by this iceberg and we, not like the captain of the Californian, just going on our way, but are taking a shot at each head as it bobs up, until it sinks to rise no more. God gives us the power to see, to taste, to hear, to smell and to feel. These are all God-given.

There was a man in our section who had a family and bought him a little food for a good price and was happy to go to Louisville and sold his produce for a good price. It meant clothes and food and some debts paid. He was pleased. It is said of a certain man, he went from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves and they took what he had and stripped him and beat him and left him for dead. THE JUDGE
 By VAUGHAN KESTER
 Illustrations By D. McVILL

SYNOPSIS.
CHAPTER I.—The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Blount place. A friend of the Quintrada is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Blount, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a nervous child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy.
CHAPTER II.—Nathaniel Perle buys the baby, but the Quintrada denies knowledge of the boy. Yancy is kept ignorant. Captain Blount, a friend of the Quintrada, appears and asks questions about the baby.
CHAPTER III.—Trouble at Scratch Hill. Yancy's home, when Hannibal is kidnapped by Dave Blount, Captain Murrell's agent. Yancy overtakes Blount, giving him a thrashing and securing the boy.
CHAPTER IV.—Yancy is served with a warrant for assaulting Blount. Yancy appears before Justice Blount, and is discharged with costs for the plaintiff.
CHAPTER V.—Betty Malroy, a friend of the Quintrada, has an encounter with Captain Murrell, who forces his attentions on her, and is rescued by Bruce Carrington, who threatens to whip the captain.
CHAPTER VI.—Betty sets out for her Tennessee home. Carrington takes the same stage. Yancy and Hannibal disappear with Murrell on their trip. He overtakes them in the mountains of Tennessee. Murrell gets Yancy drunk and strangles him in a fight that followed. Hannibal escapes in a canoe.
CHAPTER VII.—Hannibal arrives at the home of Judge Blount Price.
CHAPTER VIII.—The Judge recognizes in the boy the grandson of an old time friend. Murrell arrives at Judge's home. Hannibal bears the finding of Yancy's body. Price arrested as counterfeiter.
CHAPTER IX.—A Swedish family on their way to the West. Yancy, who is apparently dead, Price breaks jail.
CHAPTER X.—Betty and Carrington arrive at Belle Plain.
CHAPTER XI.—Hannibal's rifle discharges some startling things to Judge Hannibal and Betty meet again.
CHAPTER XII.—Murrell arrives at Belle Plain. Is playing for big stakes.
CHAPTER XIII.—Yancy awakes from long dreamless sleep on board the railroad train. He is in the hands of a man who has been his enemy for years.
CHAPTER XIV.—Judge Price makes startling discoveries in looking up and down the river. He finds a man who has been his enemy for years.
CHAPTER XV.—Norton informs Carrington that Betty has promised to marry Carrington. He tells Betty good-bye. Norton is mysteriously shot.
CHAPTER XVI.—More light on Murrell's plans. He plans uprising of negroes.
CHAPTER XVII.—The Judge and Hannibal visit Betty.
CHAPTER XVIII.—Betty is told why Norton was killed. She leaves Belle Plain, taking Hannibal with her. The outbreak is held up in the woods.
CHAPTER XIX.—Betty and Hannibal are made prisoners in a lonely cabin.
CHAPTER XX.—Murrell appears at the cabin and shows his hand.
CHAPTER XXI.—The Judge hears of the mysterious disappearance of Betty and Hannibal.
CHAPTER XXII.—The Judge takes charge of the situation, and search for the missing ones is instituted.
 "You don't ask what my purpose is where you are concerned; you have no curiosity on that score?" She endeavored to meet his glance with a glance as resolute, then her eyes sought the boy's upturned face. "I am going to send you down river, Betty. Later I shall join you in New Orleans, and when I leave the country you shall go with me."
 "Never!" gasped Betty.
 "As my wife, or however you choose to call it. I'll tell you what a man's love is like," he boasted, and extended his hand. Betty shrank from him, and his hand fell at his side. He looked at her steadily out of his deep sunk eyes, in which blazed the fires of his passion, and as he looked, her face paled and flushed by turns. "You may learn to be kind to me, Betty," he said. "You may find it will be worth your while." Betty made no answer; she only gathered Hannibal closer to her side. "Why not accept what I have to offer, Betty?" Again he went nearer her, and again she shrank from him, but the madness of his mood was in the ascendant. He seized her and drew her to him. She struggled to free herself, but his fingers tightened about her.
 "Let me go!" she panted. He laughed his cool laugh of triumph.
 "Let you go—eat me anything but that, Betty! Have you no reward for patience such as mine? A whole summer has passed since I saw you first."
 There was the noisy shuffling of feet on the stairs, and releasing Betty, Murrell swung about on his heel and faced the door. It was pushed open an inch at a time by a not too confident hand and Mr. Slosson thus guardedly presented himself to the eye of his chief, whom he beckoned from the room.
 "Well!" said Murrell, when they stood together on the landing.
 "Just come across to the keel boat!" and Slosson led the way down stairs and from the house.
 "Dare you, Joe, you might have waited!" observed the outlaw. Slosson gave him a hardened grin. "They crossed the clearing and boarded the keel boat which rested against the bank. As they did so the cabin in the stern gave up a snatched presence in the shape of Tom Ware. Murrell started violently. "I thought you were hanging out in Memphis, Tom," he said, and his brow darkened, as sinister and forbidding, as stepped closer to the planter. Ware did not answer at once, but looked at Murrell out of heavy bloodshot eyes, his face pinched and ghastly. At last he said, speaking with visible effort.
 "I stayed in Memphis until five o'clock this morning."
 "Damn you, early hours!" roared Murrell. "What are you doing here? I suppose you've been showing that dead face of yours about the neighborhood—why didn't you stay at Belle Plain, since you couldn't keep away?"
 "I haven't been near Belle Plain; I came here instead. How am I going to meet people and answer questions?" His teeth were chattering. "Is it known she's missing?" he added.
 "Hicks raised the alarm the first thing this morning, according to the instructions I'd given him."
 "Yes!" gasped Ware. He was dripping from every pore and the sticky color came and went on his unshaven cheeks. Murrell dropped a heavy hand on his shoulder.
 "You haven't been at Belle Plain, you say, but has any one seen you on the road this morning?"
 "No one, John," cried Ware, panting between each word. There was a moment's pause and Ware spoke again. "What are they doing at Belle Plain?" he demanded in a whisper. Murrell's lips curled.
 "I understand there is talk of suicide," he said.
 "Good!" cried Ware.
 "They are dragging the body down below the house. It looks as though you were going to reap the rewards of the excellent management you have given her estate. They have been trying to find you in Memphis, so the sooner you show yourself the better," he concluded significantly.
 "You are sure you have her safe, John; no chance of discovery? For God's sake get her away from here as soon as you can; it's an awful risk you run!"
 "She'll be sent down river tonight," said Murrell.
 "Captain," began Slosson, who up to this had taken no part in the conversation, "when are you going to cross to 'other side of the bayou'?"
 "Soon," replied Murrell. Slosson laughed.
 "I didn't know but you'd clean forgot the Clan's business. I want to ask another question—but first I want to say that no one thinks higher or more frequent of the ladies than just me; I'm genuinely fond of 'em, and I've never lifted my hand again 'em except in kindness." Mr. Slosson looked at Ware with an exceedingly virtuous expression of countenance. He continued: "You orders are that we're to slip out of this a little after midnight, but suppose there's a hitch—here's the lady knowing what she knows and here's the boy knowing what he knows."
 "There can be no hitch," rasped out Murrell arrogantly.
 "I never knew a speculation that couldn't go wrong; and by rights we should have got away last night."
 "Well, whose fault is it you didn't?" demanded Murrell.
 "In a manner it were mine, but the ark got on a sandbank as we were fetching it in and it took us the whole damn night to get clear."
 "Well!" prompted Murrell, with a sullen frown.
 "Suppose they get shut of that notion of theirs that the lady's dose drowned herself; suppose they take watching the river? Or suppose the whole damn bottom drops out of this deal? What then? The lady, good looking as she is, knows enough to make west Tennessee mighty unhealthy for some of us. I say, suppose it's a flash in the pan and you have to crowd the distance in between you and this part of the world, you can't tell me you'll have any use for her then." Slosson paused impressively. "And here's Mr. Ware feeling bad, feeling like hell," he resumed. "Him and me don't want to be left in no trap with you gone God only knows where."
 "I'll send a man to take charge of the keel boat. I can't risk any more of your bungling, Joe."
 "That's all right, but you don't answer my question," persisted Slosson, with admirable tenacity of purpose.
 "What is your question, Joe?"
 "A lot can happen between this and midnight."
 "If things go wrong with me there'll be a blaze at the head of the bayou; does that satisfy you?"
 "And what then?"
 Murrell hesitated.
 "What about the girl?" insisted Slosson, dragging him back to the (Continued on page 6.)

PENIEL SUNDAY SCHOOL AND EDW. F. WETSTEIN.

In another column of this issue of The Jeffersonian will be found an article concerning the history of Peniel Sunday school on the Taylorsville road very modestly written by Mr. Edw. F. Wetstein, the faithful superintendent. For several years it has been our desire to let the world know the great work that is being done at Peniel by Mr. Wetstein, but he has been so modest and disliked so much to claim any credit for himself, that it was this week before we secured his consent to publish anything about his work. We begged him for a photograph, but he asked to be excused, saying he much preferred to give all honor to the Master, whose blessings have been his great and rich reward. We would have secured a photograph of the church building but for the fact that it is entirely surrounded with shade trees, making it impossible to get a suitable view.

You will see from the article published in this week's paper that the Sunday-school started twenty-nine years ago and that much good has been accomplished. The writer did not state that the success of the school was due to the efforts of Edw. F. Wetstein, a man who has devoted his life to the service of God and for the benefit of humanity. His time and money have always been at the command of the needy. God blesses him by giving him abundant crops on his little farm and he blesses the poor by dividing the harvests with them. He will not be pleased to see this in print, but many times he takes the profits from an acre of potatoes, or cabbage as it may be, and gives it to the poor in the city, and says nothing of it. Edw. F. Wetstein's mortal body some day will pass away, but the influence of his life in the world will live forever.

We give our readers these facts, against the will of Mr. Wetstein, because we desire to let the world know something of the great work this good man is doing, with the hope that others may imitate him in the service he is rendering to humanity. He is a busy man and a man of means, but finds time for the work of the Lord. Would it not be a grand world if we had more men like him?

A LITTLE MORE LIGHT NEEDED.

Only a few more applications for street lights in Jeffersontown are needed to get the Louisville Lighting Company to extend its line to this place. Do not sit still and think we already have the lights—we may be badly fooled. It will require the expenditure of about $12,000 to build the lines from Louisville to Jeffersontown, and the company is not likely to turn that much money loose among people who do not show their appreciation of the investment of so large a sum in their own community.

On June 29 the board of town trustees will offer for sale the electric light franchise. It is important that the citizens of the town get busy and have the required number of applications ready so the Louisville Lighting Company will know whether or not to buy the franchise. Let this warning be in time. If you haven't signed the application for electric lights, phone The Jeffersonian at once.

Gen. Haldeman Gives Handsome
Prizes at K. P. A. Meeting
—Mrs. Alcock Second.

Gen. W. B. Haldeman, editor of The Louisville Times and president of the Kentucky Press Association the past year, did much to make the forty-third annual meeting of this great organization a success. It was due to his efforts that Olympian Springs was selected as the place out of many applicants for the meet and that railroad accommodations were secured. He did not stop at that, however, but continued to do the right things at the right time to make the editors and their lady friends have a good time.

To show his appreciation of the efforts of the managers of Olympian Springs and as a compliment to the ladies of the K. P. A., he offered a prize of $10 in gold to the lady writing the best paper on the meeting. The judges reported that Mrs. Chas. B. Nelson, of Winchester, deserved the first prize, but that Mrs. J. C. Alcock, of Jeffersontown, and Mrs. Ed. D. Shinnick, of Shelbyville, wrote splendid papers and suggested that the prize be divided among them. This is where Gen. Haldeman made himself "good" with all the members of the association by coming forward and giving $5 in gold to both Mrs. Alcock and Mrs. Shinnick, thus increasing his offer to $20.

Several papers were written and deserve special mention, but space forbids printing any except those winning first and second prizes. Below we print in full the papers of Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Alcock:

FIRST PRIZE.

Long years ago roomy coaches, laden with such distinguished guests as Henry Clay, Aaron Burr, Gov. Crittenden, Gov. Morehead and Gen. John B. Houston rolled to the door of the Old Olympian Hotel, where, for rest and health even then had spread over many States. We are historically sure that they came were there matters of deep concern to solve for the welfare of the State. The inspiring environments and recuperative waters aided in the proper solution of these weighty affairs. History repeats itself. Last Monday a carload of notables heading beneath their own names of newspaper problems was unloaded at Olympia station for a purpose as deep in significance as that which inspired the others to come hither.

For months the Kentucky Press Association has lived in the joyful anticipation of this meeting. With a breath of gladness we dried our pen, closed our desk, hung the last "quill" on the hook and boarded the train in highest exultation to join our fellow workers. What a joyful meeting it was and how our hearts thrilled as we saluted the gallant commander of this army of congenial people, Gen. Haldeman, who, with his splendid wife, are so inspiring to those of us trying to reach their standard. With every revolution of the car wheels there were hearty felicitations and expressions of joy over the privilege of being on the way to this lovely place.

Arriving at the station we were met with comfortable vehicles and were soon rolling rejoicingly over the picturesque road that leads to Olympian Springs.

Can you ever forget, my friends, how glad you were at the sight of the stately trees, and the good-looking crowd of guests awaiting our arrival? In great letters was written upon the threshold the word Welcome, and on the door a latch string that extends to the remotest corner of Kentucky.

Henry Clay and Aaron Burr could not have been received more cordially than this army of the Kentucky Press. We grow "adjectively" weak over this spot nestled between the foothills of Bath county. Nature herself lovingly molded it for such a retreat. No wonder the great historical characters could solve so consummately the questions of State here, for the conditions then as now were conducive to deepest thought. The new hotel, with its splendid accommodations, has taken the place of the old, which is now only filled with sacred memories. The scenery is glorious; we cannot adequately describe the vistas of refreshing green that stretch from every viewpoint. It would require volumes, and so deeply conscious of Polk Johnson's historical knowledge we accept his statement that this is the Garden of Eden; that these hills were washed asunder by the flood and that on Mount Ararat the ark rested and poured out its contents, the best remaining here on this side the sweetest song birds, tenderest children and thriving Alderneys. Even Ham's best descendants stayed here and wait assiduously upon us. The well-springs of life are here also and the "Beau Brummel" of the party has also discovered that the Fountain of Youth is not far from the salt-sulphur well. Noah's spirit of hospitality still pervades the place. Never elsewhere greater attention to guests. Press the button and everything desired is yours. Every moment since our arrival has been filled with delight. We have not forgotten our duty to our profession and so each day we meet to solve the problems that we have in our journalistic walk through life. We have derived great benefit from these heart-to-heart talks and shall return to our profession with renewed vigor for the coming year. The officers and committees of the K. P. A. deserve much praise for their untiring energy in making this meeting such a success.

To the C. & O. officials we are deeply grateful for the kindness of our transportation, having at our disposal a special car. To our host and hostesses and all of those who helped us to so merrily while the hours away we can best express our gratitude by saying that we would be happy to know that at this time every year, without the loss of one, and with the gain of more members, we could gather under their hospitable roof in a reunion sweetly suggestive of the one sometime "Beyond the Blue," when we shall gather to receive our reward for all things set forth by Mr. Stearns in his essay on St. Peter, the editor. Everybody's laugh from the eldest member to baby Tom Pickels, Jr., who coos delightedly. In the storehouse of fond memories none can be sweeter than those that cluster around the gala days at Olympian Springs.

MRS. CHARLES B. NELSON,
Winchester, Ky.

SECOND PRIZE.

We came, we saw—and we were conquered by Olympian Springs. We feel sure the illustrious Caesar, were these words, would neither censure nor accuse us of egotism in adding to the record of his laurels. It were possible for him to be a guest of the most congenial management of one of the most beautiful summer resorts in this grand old Commonwealth, of which we, as Kentuckians, are justly proud. As many of us were not aware of the existence of so charming a spot as Olympian Springs, we little dreamed of the treat in store for us, and one and all for we are citizens of the State. A lifelong vote of thanks for being instrumental in making us acquainted with one of Kentucky's most beautiful resorts, formerly the property of the famous statesman, compromiser and patriot, Henry M. Clay, nestled in a natural basin, making a beautiful picture which nature herself has framed with rugged hills. Too much praise cannot be paid Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Troxel, and Miss Leila Scoggin, the official entertainers, for their untiring efforts to make this one of the most pleasant, as well as profitable meetings of the Kentucky Press Association. We must not omit mentioning anyone who has helped in any way to make our stay here most pleasant, and using a time-worn, but not worn-out, expression, "Honor to him to whom honor is due." We will always sing the praises of the fine orchestra, the courteous, maids and waiters and last, but by no means least, the queens of the culinary department of this splendidly equipped summer resort. All these extraordinary attributes have certainly been a source of inspiration to editors and others on the program, for their contributions have been both enjoyable and instructive, and were presented in a most pleasing manner. To the different railroads, especially the C. & O., sincere thanks are due for the courtesies extended, and it is to be hoped they will receive more remunerative thanks when we go home and tell the good news to every creature.

May the never-ending fame of Olympian Springs have its birth at this forty-third session of the K. P. A., and may we come again in the desire of MRS. J. C. ALCOCK.

FLORAL PARADE
By Educational Committee To Be Mammoth Affair—Handsome Prizes Offered.

Fifty-eight handsome prizes, selected at different retail stores of Louisville, will be awarded the prize winners in the various divisions of the mammoth floral parade given in the city June 25. The list is complete, and was announced at a meeting of the Committee on Prizes Saturday night. Planes, organs, gramophones, silver loving cups, cut glass, linen, handbags, hand embroidered waists and opera cloaks to tempt the feminine taste; leather runners, gas ranges and pictures for the home; silk umbrellas, silk hats, mission clocks, fireless cookers and chaffing dishes are included in the list.

For the winners in each division of the parade, these handsome prizes will be awarded at River View Park after the parade. The list presents a complete and tempting appearance, and it is believed will add stimulus to arrangements for the pageant.

The various divisions already are well filled, but a few who have expressed their intention to participate in the parade are still holding out. These delinquent ones will be gone after this week in an effort to induce them to sign up for space.

Practically all the leading merchants of the city will be represented in the parade, while many private owners of vehicles and horses also have responded to invitations to participate. Many features of a surprising nature in unique and beautiful decorations are promised.

Jefferson county outside, the city will be well represented.

Hurt by the Hobbie Skirt.

A bitter cry against the modern fashion of harem skirts came from Roubax, in the north of France, a town noted for its manufactures of dress goods. The reduction of the material necessary for a dress from eight yards to three or four has thrown families into misery and is helping to starve the children and babies, it is declared.

The assistant mayor of Roubax says that the falling off in the output there has robbed 20,000 men and women of their employment and meant a loss of from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 in wages this year. From twenty to twenty-five per cent of the weaving trade is idle. A worker explains the situation in these words:

"We work generally only two days a week, and when there's a family we earn about enough to starve on. It is quite time the ladies gave up their hobbie skirts."

REMINISCENCE.

(From an Old Cripple Soldier's Talk.)
As we begin to lope and toddle on life's great unknown way,
We have baby joys and sorrows as we grow older day by day;
When we are rocked and tossed by those terrible aching pains,
"He should be rocked gently to sleep," our mother exclaims;
About life's tough problems we do not know so very much,
Though we do know there is nothing equal to a loving mother's touch.
Childhood is upon us and we are securely placed in bed,
Feel how caressingly she tucks the cover around our heads?
Or if we are a little sick and in a most terrible plight,
With a hand upon our forehead and a sweet kiss of goodnight,
"Mother, home and heaven," all mean so very, very much,
But the three blend in one loving mother's touch.
From the babyhood to the degree of boyhood we have older grown,
Started out to school many a plank to show and to be shown,
Coming home telling tales of hard lessons we have to learn,
With those hood trophies, stumped toes and fingers bruised;
She corrects us, flogs us, and helps us and tells us very much,
Back comes the echo, "Nothing like a loving mother's touch."
From boyhood to manhood we come to take our country's stand,
To battle with temptations that beset us on every hand,
When things go against us in memory back we are sure to be,
And once again to her we pray as of yore at mother's knee,
Then we arise strengthened, for life's battles thus so very, very much,
That the impression still remains of a loving mother's touch.
But now the man has heard his country's call and he needs to be ready,
And into the noise of battle, smoke, shell and dying balls,
Running forward with the banner of red, white and blue,
Fell with a whisper, "Mother I shall return home to you."
War is now over and he comes home, slowly walking on a crutch,
Away he comes if his amnesia cured by a loving mother's touch,
And now we see a man so very old, weak and gray,
Telling us he saw many winters come and pass away,
Of all great things he has seen, said or done, they revert back and are summed up in one, Whatever I did, if it ever amounted to much—Glory to God for giving us a loving mother's touch. A WORKING WOMAN.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION.

DODDER IN CLOVER.

One of the most destructive weeds found in Kentucky is a small twining yellowish-red plant which clamber over clover and alfalfa, securing itself to these plants and robbing them of their sap. It comes from a minute brownish-gray seed, looking like a particle of dirt, which germinates exactly like the seed of clover, but after coming up lets go its hold on the soil and fastens upon other plants. The love-vine is a related species, but is commonly found on plants of little value, growing on wet land.

These plants have no true leaves and are not weeds in the proper sense, but parasites, deriving all their nourishment from plants of other sorts. The clover-infesting species becomes extremely destructive at times, and sometimes damages a planting so severely as to compel the owner to plow it out. Fortunately, it does not attack most other plants and hence, even if soil becomes thickly sown with its seed, it will produce crops of other sorts. Yet it is sometimes a source of loss and annoyance to a farmer to give up a tract of land for clover, or alfalfa, because of the presence of the seeds of dodder in the soil, and the question is often asked: "What can I do to get rid of it?"

Very little can be done, once soil is thickly sown with the seeds, except using the land for other crops not subject to attack and waiting until the seeds have lost their vitality. Just how long this will be necessary has not been determined, but it would probably be a good many years, judging by what we know of the persistence of other seeds.

It is a matter of the utmost importance, therefore, to prevent land becoming infested with the pest, and here something can be done. The seeds have been sown in large numbers in Kentucky with clover and alfalfa seeds. Our work of inspecting the field seeds sold in the market showed originally that a large proportion of both the clover and alfalfa seeds contained dodder seeds. At one time screenings contained dodder and other weed seeds were imported to this country from Europe and were mixed with the seeds sold to our farmers. This fact accounts for the general presence of dodder seeds among clover and alfalfa seeds when we began our work. The pest was about that time so thickly sown over the State that at present one is liable to find its seeds in any hay or clover or alfalfa seed offered for sale.

To avoid sowing the seeds farmers should acquaint themselves with their appearance, and to do this it is only necessary to buy a tripod magnifier costing about fifty cents, spread a sample of clover or alfalfa seeds on a sheet of white paper and separate all foreign seeds. Dodder seeds may be recognized by the fact that they are smaller than the average well-matured clover and alfalfa seeds, measuring but about 0.04 inch in diameter, whereas good clover seeds should measure about 0.07 inch in length, and alfalfa 0.08 or 0.09 inch. Seeds of the pest are apearly spherical though sometimes slightly angled owing to the pressure of one seed against another in the seed capsule. The surface is dull and smooth, the color pale gray, or light brownish gray. Seeds of the field dodder or love-vine, sometimes found with clover seeds, average a little larger than clover dodder seeds and thus are not so easily screened out with the sieves used by seedmen. Stand and seives are in use, however, that will remove most, if all clover dodder seeds, and the presence of this dodder seed in samples it is to be feared, upon condemning the stock from which it was taken. No man working for the good of the agriculture of this country will knowingly put such seeds on the market.

When farmers or seedmen are unable to decide for themselves about the presence of dodder seeds, samples should be sent to the Experiment Station at Lexington, where they will be examined free of charge. Farmers can help greatly in reducing the pest by refusing to buy field seeds which are dodder seeds, but by refraining from harvesting clover seeds of infested fields. When dodder is prevalent in clover or alfalfa it is sometimes wise to cut the crop before the dodder seeds are ripe, or else plow the whole growth under and put the land in some other crop. A few patches of dodder in a field may sometimes be completely eradicated by using crude carbolic acid freely. This kills plants of all sorts for a time, but in one instance of slight infestation it was made use of to accomplish the purpose very effectively on the Experiment Farm. —H. GARMAN, Entomologist and Botanist, Kentucky Experiment Station.

Man Coughs and Breaks Ribs.

After a frightful coughing spell a man in Neen, Wis., felt terrible pains in his side and his doctor found two ribs had been broken. What agony Dr. King's New Discovery would have saved him. A few tea-spoonfuls of a late cough, while persistent use of our obstinate cough, expels stubborn colds or heals weak, sore lungs. "I feel sure its a Godsend to humanity," writes Mr. Elie Morton, Columbia, Mo., "For I believe I would have consumption today if I had not used this great remedy." It's guaranteed to satisfy, and you can get a free trial bottle or 50 cents or $1.00 size at all drugists.

Heart Disease Almost Fatal to Young Girl

"My daughter, when thirteen years old, was stricken with heart trouble. She was so bad we had to place her in a room near a window so she could get her breath. One doctor said, 'Poor child, she is likely to fall dead any time.' A friend told me of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy had cured her father, so I tried it, and she began to improve. She took a great many bottles, but she is spared to me today, a fat, rosy checked girl. No one can imagine the confidence I have in Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy." A. R. CANNON, Worth, Mo.

The unbounded confidence Mr. Cannon has in Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is shared by thousands of others who know its value from experience. Many heart disorders yield to treatment, if the treatment is right. If you are bothered with short breath, fainting spells, swelling of feet or ankles, pains about the heart and shoulder blades, palpitation, weak and hungry spells, you should begin using Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy at once. Profit by the experience of others while you may.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

HOME BOY

Doing Well in Oklahoma—Louis N. Stivers Candidate For County Attorney.

Mr. Louis N. Stivers, born and reared in Jefferson county, is "making good" in far-away Oklahoma, where he went three years ago after graduating in the law school at Louisville. The county seat of Delaware county was changed last year from Grove to Jay, and Mr. and Mrs. Stivers have moved to the latter place on account of his profession. Mr. Stivers is a candidate for county attorney and his hosts of friends here sincerely hope he will come out victorious.

To show the way in which he is regarded in Oklahoma, we publish the following from the Grove Sun:

"Attorney Louis N. Stivers, and wife, left first of the week for Jay, where they intend to make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Stivers will be missed in a social and professional way in Grove, having made many friends since coming to our city some three years ago from that grand old state, Kentucky. Mr. Stivers is making the race for county attorney of Delaware county, subject to the action of the Republican primary.

He has built up an excellent law practice in this county, and has not been a failure by any means. The Sun wishes this couple happiness and prosperity in their new home at Jay, and trusts that they will decide to return to Grove, their first love at an early day."

FISHERVILLE.

June 17.—Misses Thomas Beard entertained on Sunday in honor of her guest Miss Mamie Bridwell. Her guests were Messrs. Ellwood Walls, of Paris, Hewitt Hunsinger, of Jeffersontown, and Carbett Benham, of this place.

Mrs. Kathryn Wakefield, of Shelbyville, is the guest of Mrs. Beard Wakefield.

Misses Alice Gilliland and Kathryn Beard attended the Nicholson-Parfitt wedding on the twelfth.

Messrs. R. L. Shannon, William Dale, Minor Maddox, James Lewis and Harrison Wakefield, of Shelbyville, are spending this week at Blue Rock Hotel.

The Clark Station baseball team forfeited the game to Fishersville Saturday afternoon by refusing to continue the game after the sixth inning. Batters: Fishersville, Ryan, Huckleberry, Rommele and Benham; Clarks, Waters, Johnson and Smith.

point at issue between them. "As a man I wouldn't lift my hand against a good looking woman except, like I said, in kindness; but she can't be turned loose; she knows too much. What's the word, Captain—say it!" he urged. He made a gesture of appeal to Ware.

"Look for the light; better still, look for the man I'll send." And with this Murrell would have turned away, but Blossom detained him.

"Who'll be he?"

"Some fellow who knows the river." "And it's the light?" asked the tavern-keeper in a hoarse undertone. Again he looked toward Ware, who, dry-lipped and ashen, was regarding him steadily. Glance met glance, for a brief instant they looked into each other's eyes and then the hand Blossom had rested on Murrell's shoulder dropped at his side.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Judge Meets the Situation. The judge's and Mr. Mahaffy's celebration of the former's rehabilitated credit had occupied the shank of the evening, the small hours of the night, and that part of the succeeding day which the southwest described as noon in the morning; and as the stone jug, in which were garnered the spoils of the highly confidential but entirely mislaid conversation which the judge had held with Mr. Pegoe after his return from Belle Plain, lost in weight, it might have been observed that he and Mr. Mahaffy seemed to gain in that nice sense of equity which should form the basis of all human relations. The judge watched Mr. Mahaffy, and Mr. Mahaffy watched the judge, each trustfully placing the regulation of his private conduct in the hands of his friend, as the one was likely to be affected by the rectitude of his acts.

Probably so extensive a consumption of the judge's whisky had never been accomplished with greater high-mindedness. They honorably split the last glass, the judge scorning to set up any technical claim to it as his exclusive property; then he stared at Mahaffy, while Mahaffy, dark-visaged and forbidding, stared back at him.

The judge sighed deeply. He took up the jug and inverted it. A stray drop or so fell languidly into his glass.

"Try squeezing it, Price," said Mahaffy.

"The judge shook the jug, it gave forth an empty sound, and he sighed again; he attempted to peer into it, closing one watery eye as he tilted it toward the light.

"I wonder no Yankee has ever

"Try squeezing it, Price," said Mahaffy.

thought to invent a jug with a glass bottom," he observed.

"What for?" asked Mahaffy.

"You astonish me, Solomon," exclaimed the judge. "Coming as you do from that section which invented the wooden nutmeg, and an eight-day clock that has been known to run as much as four or five hours at a stretch. I am aware the Yankees are an ingenious people; I wonder none of 'em ever thought of a jug with a glass bottom, so that when a body holds it up to the light he can see at a glance whether it is empty or not. Do you reckon Pegoe has sufficient confidence to fill the jug again for us?"

But Mahaffy's expression indicated no great confidence in Mr. Pegoe's confidence.

"Credit," began the judge, "is proverbially shy; still it may sometimes be increased, like the muscles of the body and the mental faculties, by judicious use. I've always regarded Pegoe's as a cheap mind. I hope have done him an injustice." He put on his hat, and tucking the judge under his arm went from the house.

Ten or fifteen minutes elapsed. Mahaffy considered this a good sign; it didn't take long to say no, he reflected. Another ten or fifteen elapsed. Mahaffy lost heart. Then the judge, in a hasty step beyond the door, it was thrown violently open, and the judge precipitated himself into the room. A glance showed Mahaffy that he was laboring under intense excitement.

"Solomon, I bring shocking news. God knows what the next few hours may reveal!" cried the judge, snatching his brow. "Miss Malroy has disappeared from Belle Plain, and Hannibal has gone with her!"

"Where have they gone?" asked Mahaffy, and his long jaw dropped.

"Would to God I had an answer ready for that question, Solomon!"

answered the judge, with a melancholy shake of the head. He gazed down on his friend with an air of large tolerance. "I am going to Belle Plain, but you are too drunk. Sleep it off, Solomon, and join me when your brain is clear and your logs stay put."

Mahaffy jerked out an oath, and lifting himself off his chair, stood erect. He snatched up his hat.

"Stuff your pistols into your pockets, and come on, Price!" he said, and stalked toward the door.

He flitted up the street, and the judge puffed and panted in his wake. They gained the edge of the village without speech.

"There is mystery and rascality here!" said the judge.

"What do you know, Price, and where did you hear this?" Mahaffy shot the question back over his shoulder.

"At Pegoe's; the Belle Plain overseer had just fetched the news into town."

Again they were silent, all their energies being absorbed by the physical exertion they were making. The road danced before them, their burning eyes, it seemed to be unrolling their serpent-wise with hideous undulations. Mr. Mahaffy was conscious that the judge, and indeed he caught a brief vision now at his right side, now at his left, was laboring painfully in the heat and dust, the breath whistling from between his teeth.

"You're just ripe for apoplexy, Price!" he snarled, moderating his pace.

"Go on," said the judge, with stolid resolution.

Two miles out of the village they came to a roadside spring; here they paused for an instant. Mahaffy scooped up handfuls of the clear water and quenching it greedily. The judge dipped on his stomach and buried his face in the tiny pool, gulping up great thirsty swallows. After a long breathless instant he stood erect, with drops of moisture clinging to his nose and eyebrows. Mahaffy was a dozen paces down the road, hurrying forward again with relentless vigor. The judge shuffled after him. The tracks they left in the dust crossed and recrossed in their burning eyes, the slanting lines of their advance straightened, the judge gained and held a fixed place at Mahaffy's right, but in the rear. His opinion fancy began to deal with the situation.

"If anything happens to the child, the man responsible for it would better never been born—I'll pursue him with undiminished energy from this moment forth!" he panted.

"What could happen to him, Price?" asked Mahaffy.

"God knows, poor little lad!"

"Will you shut up?" cried Mahaffy savagely.

"Solomon!"

"Why do you go building on that idea? Why should any one learn him—what earthly purpose?"

"I tell you, Solomon, we are the pivotal point in a vast circle of crime. This is a blow at me; this is revenge, sir, neither more nor less! They have struck at me through the boy, it is as plain as day."

"What did the overseer say?"

"Just that they found Miss Malroy gone from Belle Plain this morning, and the boy with her."

"This is like you, Price! How do you know they haven't spent the night at some neighbors'?"

"The nearest neighbor is five or six miles distant. Miss Malroy and Hannibal were seen along dusk in the grounds at Belle Plain; do you mean to tell me you consider it likely that they set out on foot at that hour, and without a word to any one, to make a visit?" inquired the judge; but Mahaffy did not contend for this point.

"What are you going to do first, Price?"

"Have a look over the grounds, and talk with the slaves."

"Where's the brother—wasn't he at Belle Plain last night?"

"It seems he went to Memphis yesterday."

They plodded forward in silence; now and again they were passed by some lean on horseback whose destination was the same as their own, and then at last they caught sight of Belle Plain in its grove of trees.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Judge Takes Charge.

All work on the plantation had stopped, and the hundreds of slaves—men, women and children—were gathered about the house. Among these moved the members of the dominant race. The judge would have attached himself to the first group, but he was at a whispered question, and the answer:

"Miss Malroy's lawyer."

Clearly it was not for him to mix with these outsiders, these curiosity seekers. He crossed the lawn to the house, and mounted the steps. In the doorway was big Steve, while groups of men stood about in the hall, the hum of busy purposeless talk pervading the place. The judge frowned. This was all wrong.

"Has Mr. Ware returned from Memphis?" he asked of Steve.

"No, sah; not yet."

"Then show me into the library," said the judge with bland authority, surrendering his hat to the butler.

"Come along, Mahaffy!" he added, and entered the library, and the judge motioned Steve to close the door. "Now, boy, you'll kindly ask those people to withdraw—you may say it is Judge Price's orders. Allow no one to enter the house unless they have business with me, or as I send for them—you understand? After you have cleared the house, you may bring me a decanter of corn whiskey—stop a bit—you may ask the sheriff to stop here."

"Yes, sah," And Steve withdrew. The judge drew an easy-chair up to the flat-topped desk that stood in the center of the room, and seated himself.

"Are you going to make this the excuse for another drunk, Price? If so, I feel the greatest contempt for you," said Mahaffy sternly.

"The judge winced at this.

"You have made a regrettable choice of words, Solomon," he urged gently.

"Where's your feeling for the boy?"

"Here!" said the judge, with an eloquent gesture, resting his hand on his heart.

"If you let whiskey alone, I'll believe you; otherwise what I have said must stand."

The door opened, and the sheriff slouched into the room. He was chewing a long wheat straw, and his whole appearance was one of troubled weakness.

"Morning," he said briefly.

"Sit down, sheriff," and the judge indicated a meek seat for the official in a distant corner. "Here you learned anything?" he asked.

The sheriff shook his head.

"What you turning all these neighbors out of doors for?" he questioned.

"We don't want people tracking in and out the house, sheriff. Important evidence may be destroyed. I propose examining the slaves first—does that meet with your approval?"

"Oh, I've talked with them; they don't know nothing," said the sheriff.

"No one don't know nothing."

"Please God, we may yet put our fingers on some villain who does," said the judge.

Outside it was noised about that Judge Price had taken matters in hand—he was the old fellow who had been warned to keep his mouth shut, and who had never stopped talking since. A crowd collected beyond the library windows and feasted its eyes on the back of this hero's bald head. One by one the house servants were ushered into the judge's presence. First he interrogated little Steve, who had gone to Miss Betty's door that morning to rouse her, as was his custom. Next he examined Mr. Price's maid; then the cook, and various house servants, who had nothing special to tell, but told it at considerable length; and lastly big Steve.

"Stop a bit," the judge suddenly interrupted the butler in the midst of his narrative. "Look the overseer at ways come up to the house the first thing in the morning?"

"Why, not exactly, sah, but he came up this morning, sah. He was talking to me at the back of the house, when the women run out with the word that Miss was done gone away."

"He told me in the search?"

"Yes, sah."

"When was Miss Malroy seen last?" asked the judge.

"She and the young gentleman you fetched heah were seen in the garden along about sundown. I seen them myself."

"They had had supper?"

"Yes, sah."

"Who sleeps here?"

"Just little Steve and three of the women; they sleeps at the back of the house, sah."

"No sounds were heard during the night?"

"No, sah."

"I'll see the overseer—what's his name?—Hicks? Suppose you go for him!" said the judge, addressing the sheriff.

The sheriff was gone from the room only a few moments, and returned with the information that Hicks was down at the bayou, which was to be dragged.

"Why inquired the judge?"

"Hicks says Miss Malroy's been acting mighty queer ever since Charley Norton was shot—distracted like! He says he noticed it, and that Tom Ware noticed it."

"How does he explain the boy's disappearance?"

"It seems he threw himself in, and the boy tried to drag her out, like he naturally would, and got drawn in."

"Bum! I'll trouble Mr. Hicks to step here," said the judge quietly.

"There's Mr. Carrington and a couple of strangers outside who've been asking about Miss Malroy and the boy; seems like the strangers knowed her and him back yonder in North Carolina," said the sheriff as he turned away.

"I'll see them." The sheriff went from the room and the judge dismissed the servants.

"Well, what do you think, Price?" asked Mahaffy anxiously when they were alone.

"Rubbish! Take my word for it, Solomon, this big lie is leveled at me. I have been too forward in my attempts to suppress the carnival of crime that is raging through west Tennessee. You'll observe that Miss Malroy disappeared at a moment when the public is disposed to think she retained me as her legal adviser; probably she will be set at liberty when she agrees to drop the matter of Norton's murder. As for the boy, they'll use him to compel my silence and inaction."

The judge took a long breath. "Yet there remains one point where the boy is concerned that completely baffles me. If I knew just a little more of his antecedents it might enable me to make a startling and radical move."

Mahaffy was clearly not impressed by the vague generalities in which the judge was dealing.

"There you go, Price, as usual, trying to convince yourself that you are the master of everything," he said in a tone of much exasperation. "Let's get down to business! What does this man Hicks mean by hinting at suicide? You saw Miss Malroy yesterday?"

"You have put your finger on a point of some significance."

"She bore evidence of the shock and loss she had sustained; aside from that she was quite as she has always been."

"Well, what do you want to see Hicks for? What do you expect to learn from him?"

"I don't like his insistence on the idea that Miss Malroy is mentally unbalanced. It's a question of some delicacy—the law, sir, fully recognizes that. It seems to me he is overzealous to account for the disappearance in a manner that can compromise no one."

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Working On Important Propositions—Meets Tomorrow Night.

The Jefferson Commercial Club is working on several propositions that will doubtless result in a lasting benefit to the community. Among the things desired are two chemical engines and electric lights. There are other things under consideration, but these seem to be certainties.

The committee dined to purchase the engines will meet tonight and consider the best engine to purchase. As soon as the engines are placed in operation the Kentucky Actuarial Fire Insurance Bureau will go over this territory and fix the insurance rates, which will be reduced considerably, if the right kind of engines are purchased. This information was obtained direct from the Bureau by The Jeffersonian this week.

The Commercial Club will meet tomorrow (Friday) night at 8 o'clock at Bruce Hall. Among the things to be discussed are electric lights, fire engines, street car and the parade in the big educational meeting in Louisville next week. Everybody, which includes the ladies, are urged to be present.

Annual Picnic And Dance.

The fourth annual picnic and dance given by Buechel Camp Modern Woodmen of America, No. 13187, will be given Saturday afternoon and night, June 29, 1912, at Fern Creek fairgrounds. There will be a game of ball between the Newburg and Frogtown teams. Woodrow's band will furnish the music. Wagons will meet every car. Admission free. Refreshments of all kinds on the ground. Come one, come all, for a jolly good time.

SAM A. IRVINE, Clerk.

Mrs. Emily Magness Dead.

Mrs. Emily Magness, aged 74, died suddenly of cardiac asthma June 28, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Heady, at Fisherville. Her remains were taken from there to the home of another daughter, Mrs. Edwin Kahl, at New Albany, Ind., where the funeral was held. The burial took place in Fair View cemetery. Deceased leaves her husband, D. W. Magness, two daughters, J. B. Heady and Mrs. Edwin Kahl, and one son, Owen Magness.

To Dedicate Church June 30.

The new Christian church at Middletown will be dedicated on Sunday, June 30, at 11 o'clock. Rev. Robt. M. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, will have charge of the morning services. Rev. Linsley Gordon, of Clifton Christian church, will preach the dedication sermon in the afternoon. There will be special music and dinner, on the grounds.

Will Move to Louisville.

Dr. J. L. Hummel will move his office from Jefferson to Louisville next week. He is a young physician born and reared in this community, and understands his profession thoroughly. He will continue to practice in Jefferson. Best wishes of his many friends go with him to his new field.

Improves Cemetery.

The cutting of the grass and weeds by the officers of the Lutheran church in the cemetery and lawn last week added much to the respect of their departed ones and makes a decided improvement along that street.

Built New Barn.

Mr. Jim Gunn, has just completed a nice new barn and otherwise improved his place near Jeffersonville. Jim believes in keeping things looking up-to-date.

Mrs. William Semple gave Miss Mary Polk a kitchen towel shower at her home in Louisville Monday afternoon.

Each guest homed and monogrammed a towel. Miss Polk received two dozen towels, six scrub cloths, one dozen dust cloths, one dozen glass towels and several iron holders and ice bags.

Mrs. John Rose, an area hostess at a kitchen shower at Mr. Carl Purcell, who has recently gone to house-keeping in the cottage formerly occupied by Mrs. Julia Pearce. A delightful afternoon was spent by present and Mrs. Purcell received many elegant and useful kitchen utensils.

GOOD GAME

Of Baseball Played at Jefferson Heights Sunday—Fanelli Brothers Win.

Fanelli Brothers, of Jeffersontown, won another interesting game of ball last Sunday, defeating the strong Highland Athletics of Louisville, by the score of 6 to 3. Fanelli's broke in the run column in fourth inning. Davis smashed one of Whitt's batters to right field for three sacks and came home on a wild throw to third. This ended the scoring until the sixth. In this inning the home boys fell on Mr. Whitt's delivery, driving him to the "tail and uncat." Harping was sent to the rescue but the game was lost. Monroe had the visitors blanked until the ninth, with a runner on second and third and two out. Wendell hit an easy fly between first and second. Roemele and Harris both started for the ball and both came together and the ball fell safe.

The Dulles will be here next Sunday. This is the only team that has defeated the Fanelli this season. A new face will be seen on the team Sunday. Everybody will be glad to see him in a Fanelli uniform.

Death of Mrs. Wm. Swan.

Mrs. Minnie A. Swan, wife of Mr. Wm. Swan, of Swamp College, died Thursday, June 13, of uremic poisoning. She was thirty-eight years of age, and had been a faithful member of the Christian church twenty-three years. She is survived by her husband and two months' old son; also three brothers, William and James Gunn, of Jeffersontown, and Everett Gunn, of Louisville; three sisters, Mrs. Thursa Smith and Mrs. Alice Burdon, of Louisville, and Mrs. Emma Buckman, of Valley Station. The funeral was conducted at the Christian church Saturday morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. H. N. Reubert, after which interment took place in the Jeffersontown cemetery.

Will Wed Tomorrow.

Miss Mary Shreve Polk, daughter of Mrs. D. L. Polk, of Jeffersontown, and Mr. Howard Scott Morse, of Boston, Mass., will be united in marriage at the home of the bride-to-be tomorrow evening at 8:30. The Rev. Joseph Young, of Louisville, a friend of the family, will officiate. After the ceremony the young couple will leave on a bridal trip.

Services at Presbyterian Church.

Col. Bennett H. Young will preach at the Jeffersontown Presbyterian church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend.

LONG TROUBLE CURED By CHARLIE WHITE-MOON'S ROOT AND HERB MEDICINES

"GOD ANSWERED MY PRAYERS FOR RELIEF," writes this grateful lady. Read this wonderful statement and acknowledge that Roots and Herbs ARE the master medicines for overcoming disease.

CHARLIE WHITE-MOON saved my life when everything else had failed. I will gladly prove this statement personally at any time and be proud to get the opportunity to do so. (Signed)

Louisville, Ky. 1912
Mr. Charlie White-Moon—For a long time I have been wanting to add my testimony to the list of people here at home who have been cured by your medicines, but have been waiting for several months to pass so that I would be sure I was cured. I was sickly for fourteen years, and treatment of doctors nearly all that time till finally all my troubles seemed to settle in my bones and a terrible cough started which nothing would control, and drew on my strength so that I became weak, my stomach refused to hold food. I lost weight rapidly, finally being unable to do any work at all, not even weaving, was in bed a great part of the time. I had terrible pains through my lungs, and the staff I spit up was something terrible. I felt like there was a hole in my left lung, which pained me through under the shoulder blade and made life almost unbearable. I had completely lost every hope for ever being well again till one day my husband heard of the Root and Herb medicine of Charlie White-Moon and he went to your office, buying the Roots and Herbs for me. I began improving in about two weeks gradually grew stronger and in about six weeks I took courage and knew I was getting well. I thank God for that day, for it seemed God had answered my prayers for relief. I improved rapidly after that, and today I do all kinds of housework, sewing, cleaning, and I have been able to go to Louisville every Friday, a distance of ten miles and have no more trouble. I feel that Charlie White-Moon's medicines saved me from a consumptive grave, and I will gladly prove this statement personally at any time and be proud to get the opportunity to do so. (Signed)

MRS. ANDY NEICHTER, St. Matthews, Ky.

Sworn and subscribed before me this 31st day of May, 1912. My commission expires June 30, 1912.
CLARA QUARTERMAN, Notary Public.

So many opinions and theories have been advanced regarding the treatment of lung trouble that thousands of sufferers have been completely MISLED, being persuaded to try most ridiculous and foolish EXPERIMENTS for cure. Many newspapers and magazines devote valuable space to fight the "great white plague." Indoubtedly, this activity is MEANT for the best, but results to a large extent in CONFUSING THE MIND OF THE SUFFERER. Sufferers from lung trouble are advised to live outdoors, try this or try that climate, eat this or don't eat that, drink this or don't drink that, try "mountain air," or "sea ozone" or "marsh air," but the point for lung sufferers to PERSEVERE IN THEIR MINDS IS, ROOTS AND HERBS HAVE BEEN CURED DISEASE FOR HUNDREDS OF YEARS, AND NO MATTER HOW MUCH "CURE" fresh air or other air is breathed, or what climate is lived in, THE HEALING CURE POWER OF ROOTS AND HERBS WILL SURELY BE NEEDED.

THE EVER INCREASING NUMBER OF CURES MADE HERE AT HOME BY Nature's medicines, ROOTS AND HERBS, is evidence sufficient to convince the most bigoted, skeptic or prejudiced person every day that THERE IS TREMENDOUS POWER IN THEM FOR GOOD, AND THEIR USE IS GROWING MORE WIDESPREAD EVERY DAY.

"I KNOW (writes this lady), that Roots and Herbs SAVED ME FROM A CONSUMPTIVE GRAVE." Why does she know? Because she HAS EXPERIENCED THE WONDERFUL DEFEAT OF DEATH, HOPE AND DESPERENCY. I tell you that the ONLY cure for lung trouble ARE THE ONES WHO HAVE SUFFERED, AND THEY ALL ADVISE SUFFERERS TO NOT WAIT, NOT PUT IT OFF BUT BEGIN NOW, NOW, NOW.

If you can't come to my office and talk it over, then write for my free book, telling the wonders of Roots and Herbs. I am at home ONLY 3 days in the week, TUESDAY, THURSDAY AND SATURDAY, 9 to 4 o'clock. COLORED PEOPLE SEEN ONLY SUNDAY MORNING, 9 to NOON.

Yours for health, happiness and SUCCESS.

SNAKE STORY

And Other News In Brief Along Central Lincoln Way—Another Boy Talent.

Buechel, June 17.—Miss Lula Hahn spent several days of last week with Miss Elsie Kramer in Frederick Lane.

Another Boy Talent.

One of our young men who is always "Wright" in everything, has another big talent besides his popularity in social circles. This time he has been discovered to be an expert chef, and one evening last week was left in charge of his sister's house and prepared an elegant supper. He invited a few girl friends to partake of the repast, as most stories go, our brave Buechel girl got a hunk and killed it. It was a very large black snake and was thrown some distance away, when later another reptile of similar size was found beside the dead one. An attempt was made to kill this one also, but it quickly took refuge under the residence, but the next evening it was killed by Mrs. N. J. Westerman, which goes to show the bravery of the Buechel fairer sex.

Snake Story.

While left in charge of the house one day last week, Miss Virginia Westerman proved herself to be a very courageous and self-controlled young lady. It was a very exciting episode, as a snake made its appearance at the window and dared Miss Virgie to approach it. However, instead of going into hysterics and having some young man come to the rescue, as most stories go, our brave Buechel girl got a hunk and killed it. It was a very large black snake and was thrown some distance away, when later another reptile of similar size was found beside the dead one. An attempt was made to kill this one also, but it quickly took refuge under the residence, but the next evening it was killed by Mrs. N. J. Westerman, which goes to show the bravery of the Buechel fairer sex.

Kurfees Paint

Is the best paint for painting houses, because it contains more White Lead than any paint in America and sufficient Zinc to harden the lead, prevent chalking and to insure permanent colors. It is made of

Pure White Lead 80%
Pure Zinc Oxide 20%

100% Pure Lead and Zinc

That's more White Lead than you will find in any other paints, and the outside white weighs 19 pounds to the gallon. A gallon of Kurfees covers more surface and covers it better because it contains more White Lead. It takes fewer gallons of Kurfees for the job. By its use you not only get the best, but reduce the cost on every job. Call, phone or write us for color cards.

science schools is to teach the children to work. A child is poorly equipped for life's duties so he is not taught to work, hence Boys' and Girls' Corn Clubs and Boy Scouts. But man cannot live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God, hence the necessity for the Bible in the public schools. As to this man who was left for dead because he had seen so many of his friends and so many good fellows, the law of Moses says, "If a man shall steal a sheep he shall restore four sheep for a sheep." That was restitution and was in this life. For what was taken from this man, what would be right as restitution? Or if there is no restitution—or will it be retribution—in there any retribution? And he said, "Nay, father Abraham, but if one went unto them from the dead they would repent." And he said unto him, "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead." And one has risen from the dead, for the Lord is risen indeed.

O, the iceberg! Are we worse than the captain of the steamship Californian? There are many other icebergs to our south.
